A few weeks ago I asked every developer to stop and focus on writing quality code, not quality content. And it may be ironic that we instead posted new blog posts at this site every day.

So, to reassure some of my readers on this site: I'm not actively coding, yet. That's partly because I have some more paperwork to do for my CS bachelor thesis.

I do consider writing these blogs, which does not always have to be about programming, as a personal exercise to keep my mind warmed up when I'm taking some break from continuing my thesis. I'll very likely to return to code mid-February, preparing some initial work for the new Teropong "Fediverse API client" and another new app for one of my communities.

That said, we have prepared many awesome things, just like last month, to put inside our next Site and Infrastructure Updates which primarily covers Reinhart Maps and some internal server improvements.

Stay tuned for more announcement, projects, and of course, more piece of code!
